IPP becomes UPI

June 17, 2013

Integrated Pipeline Projects Canada Ltd. and UniversalPegasus International (UPI) have been operating as one for several years, and now is the right time to unite under the UPI banner. This reinforces our expanded offerings in Canada, enhancing our strength as a full-service project management, engineering, and field services company, and using our decades of experience to continue to deliver excellent service.

Over the last four years, IPP and UPI have integrated corporate systems, worked together to build a strong and cohesive team and developed even stronger client relationships. We've maintained our agility—staying responsive and flexible to best serve our clients' needs.

Throughout our well-planned transition to the UPI banner, we've emphasized safety, quality, listened to our people and clients, and ultimately strengthened our company.

IPP and UPI have always shared the notion that when you do a job properly, your clients will keep coming back. And now, we share the same name too.

UniversalPegasus International:

Reliable expertise for every phase of your project.

Expanded services. UPI offers a full spectrum of services to cover every phase of your project including conceptual studies, feasibility analysis, detailed design, construction and operations management.

- Engineering + design
- Survey
- Project + program management
- Construction management
- Inspection
- Operation + maintenance support
- Feed/feasibility + economic studies
- GIS/geospatial services/geomatics
- Flow assurance
- Commission + start up
- Procurement services

Safety is paramount. Our people are our greatest asset and nothing is more important than keeping them safe. We put huge emphasis on safety programs to ensure no one gets hurt at work, or at home.

Strong team + experienced people. UPI and IPP have built a capable and cohesive team. Only our name is changing. The leadership is staying the same. UPI has 1,500 personnel across North America, South America and the UK.

Integrated systems. All of our corporate and financial systems have already been integrated for a seamless transition to the UPI banner for both our clients and our employees.

Quality brings clients back. When you do the job properly, your clients come back to you. We are proud of delivering project success and creating strong client relationships.
