TO KEEP THOUSANDS AT THE BOTTOM

Many part-time community college workers struggle to get by on unfairly low wages and precarious work schedules. These rich community college presidents are doing everything they can to make sure that never changes.

Part-time college staff rarely get equal pay for doing the exact same job as a full-time worker. They've never been given the right to health benefits, paid sick days or vacation. And these colleges are using every trick in the book to stop thousands of part-timers from forming a union to protect themselves.

Ontario's community colleges promise students a good job and a bright future.
It's time they delivered those opportunities to their own workers.
